28 December 2005

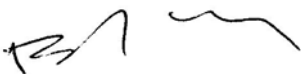

To: Chief Executive of Organization

30 departments of the Hong Kong SAR Government join hand to hold a joint campaign “Science in the Public Service” in 2006. This campaign aims to present the scientific work of Government departments and to showcase the government’s application of science to our daily life. It will commence in January with a joint exhibition and lectures. Throughout the year 2006, a number of activities will be organized, including an essay competition (co-sponsored with Hong Kong Education City), public lectures, visits, roving exhibition, talks at schools, displays on loan and an awards ceremony as an end-of-campaign event in late 2006. If you need a copy of the poster or leaflet of the campaign, please let us know.

The joint exhibition will be held at the Exhibition Gallery, G/F, Hong Kong Central Library at Causeway Bay on 13-17 January 2006. Various departments will bring out the message of “Science in the Public Service” through a variety of exhibits and interactive displays. The exhibition will also assist in finding necessary information for the essay competition, which will be held at a later time. This is a valuable opportunity to better understand the services provided by government departments through science. We would like to invite your organization, staff, their family and friends to visit the exhibition.

For details of the campaign, please visit our website at <http://www.science.gov.hk>.

Wishing you a Happy New Year!

Dr B Y Lee

Chairman of the “Science in the Public Service” Campaign
